TA: Kyna McClenaghan

Develop Keywords for Your Search

- Are you looking for your film(s), directors, producers, or something specifically?
- What keywords can you search in conjunction with the film and/or first keyword you thought of above? How can this narrow your search to make the results more manageable?
- Which filters can you use to further narrow your results? (Be sure to at least use the book filter in UCSB Library Search to find a book with a call number).
- Tips on keyword searching here

Example Search and How to Find the Call Number:

Call Number for Library Trip

*bring with you to the library so you can find the book easily

Find your way to your call number by using the call number location guide. Many of your sources will be found in the PN call number area on the 7th floor. Navigate to this page with all floors and locations to help guide you through the library.

While in the stacks, look in the immediate vicinity of the book you're trying to find. What other books are there that might prove useful to you or cause you to ask different questions related to your research topic? Write significant book discoveries below.

Come back to the group meeting space and look through your source for evidence that might help your argument. Take some preliminary notes to assist with your future annotation.

Write out the citation for your source.

Tip: Use the citation tool the library has provided. Click “citation” and then click “Chicago/Turabian” to see how to cite the book correctly.
